

Kender Energy Inc. (Pink Sheets: KNDR) Reveals its Marketing Plan

Kender Energy Inc. (Pink Sheets: KNDR) announces the release of its marketing plan for rollout of its new generation solar panels. Through this plan, Kender Energy Inc. addresses the demands of distributors and retailers to become able to service their customers.

Within the marketing plan, the distributors and retailers receive a comprehensive plan on how to work together with Kender Energy Inc. Any potential distributor can subscribe via the Kender Web site and join the application process.

The company has developed a new solar technology, where the thermal and light's energy of the sun are used together to spin helium in a closed circuit. The Kender solar panels are planned to be installed within households, such as traditional solar panels.

The video of the first tests of these new solar panels are available on the Website of Kender Energy Inc. at www.kendersolar.com under the "technology" section. The video has also been made available on YouTube (www.youtube.com), where the video can be seen using with the key words "solar" and "helium".

About Kender Energy Inc.:

Kender Energy Inc. (Pink Sheets: KNDR) is a development phase company active in the field of solar energy. Its present prototypes of solar panels engine are being developed into a full-scale solar energy production system. The particularity of the Kender solar panel system and technology is to allow, via a closed circuit of gas (usually helium), to create a heat exchange with the sun and the air from the environment. The exchange generates the spinning of the helium gas in the closed circuit, propelling a turbine, which produces electricity in a 100% clean and renewable process. The system's main advantages are that it is efficient, cheap in production, and modular. The company is based near Geneva, Switzerland. Its Website is www.kendersolar.com.
